Here are some ways to draw a spider's web, including how to draw a web in the corner of a page.
Things You'll Need

☐ Pencil
☐ Paper
☐ Ruler (optional)

Method 1	Method 1 of 3: Corner Spider Web

1 Take your pencil and on the top of the page, about two inches from the right start drawing a line to 2 inches (5.1 cm) below the right top corner. The line should loop down and have points. (see the picture)
2 Draw straight lines from the points in your first line to the corner.

3 Make lines parallel to your fist line going all the way up. You should have 5 or 6 lines.

1 Get a paper and make a cross on it, try to make both lines a similar length (using a ruler will help)

2 Draw diagonal lines through the centre, dividing the paper up from 4 to 8 sections. Make sure they are smaller than the cross you made before.

3 Start connecting the lines with inverted arcs, this is an arc), from the inside out.

4 Once you have reached the end of the web, elongate the diagonal lines, (this will make it look like it has supports).
5 Draw a spider by making a fuzzy ball, then drawing legs (eight of them) on your web. Or see the spider drawing tip.

6 Finished.

1 Draw a circle and draw a cross section which also extends outside the circle.

2 Draw two diagonal lines at the midpoint of the cross-sections which form an X-mark.

3 Draw squares which descend in size as it nears the centre point. Draw the corners or vertices of the square along the diagonal lines.

4 Draw diamond shapes descending in size as it nears the centre point. Draw the vertices along the lines of the cross-section.

5 Draw curves to connect the lines – from the squares to the diamonds, much like forming bridges.

6 Trace with a pen and erase unnecessary lines. You may add drawings for spiders.

7 Color to your liking!

What is a spiderweb like in real life?

A spiderweb in real life can be hard to see if it is not well established. It looks like incredibly thin thread hanging from the ceiling or wall. More established spiderwebs tend to be a white-ish gray and easier to see. It often has a point in the center where all the other branches come off from.

Tips

- Use a ruler for the straight lines.

- You can try drawing a friendly spider by drawing a straight line from the web. Draw a circle at the end of the line. Draw 8 legs coming out of the circle. Those lines should go upward from the circle while the end of the lines should point downward. Then draw a cute little smiley in the circle!

- Try making the lines neat, that way they will look better.
